

Dynamic Documentation Handling System

The topics mentioned below are typical ingredients of a Dynamic Documentation Handling System for Metering. These ones are considered the “back bone” of such a system, but naturally other requirements or specific needs can be accommodated in your tailor made set up.

- Document access via the internet
- User name and password controlled
- Easy update routines for the documents involved
- Graphical interface as the top layer – click down for details
- Menu based detailed pages